

LIZETTE NEME

She is a Partner at InStrag, Public Affairs & Law Consulting, where she oversees the legal area specialized on financial and corporate law, with a focus on digital financial services. InStrag is a boutique consulting firm that provides strategic support to companies doing business in Mexico and builds tailored services to help businesses succeed in the Mexican environment. Previously she held several positions in the Ministry of Finance, where she led the drafting and design of the FinTech Law in the Banking and Securities Unit. She also acted as Legal Counsel at the Public Credit Unit and as Chief of Staff – Chief Legal Advisor to the Undersecretary for Revenues, where she was involved in the design of tax policy. She began her professional career as external counsel at White & Case, where she worked for almost 10 years, specializing in corporate, financial and securities law. Ms. Neme attended the Escuela Libre de Derecho, where she graduated as an Attorney-in-Law in June 2007. She also obtained an LLM degree in International Finance Law from King's College London, University of London, in 2010.